ANDREWS
INSPECTS
POLICE*Men Make a Most Creditable
Show.*Were All Out in Their Best Blue Uniform.*The Attorney General Promises to Stand by the Police Department.

The newly appointed Attorney General, Lorrin Andrews, inspected the police department of the city yesterday. It has become the custom for the Attorney General, under whose direction the police of the Territory works, to hold these inspections, and the inspection is always a particularly important one when a new Attorney General has been appointed, as occasion is taken then to familiarize the new official with the working of the department upon whose efficiency so much of the success of the conduct of his office depends, and to familiarize the men, on their part, with the newly chosen official.

For these reasons the inspection of yesterday was regarded as a most important event in police circles. Every member of the department, from High Sheriff Brown and his chief deputy, Charles Chillingworth, to the least of the specials, was in his best suit, and every star and buckle and brass button shone resplendent in the morning sun. The inspection had been appointed to take place at half past nine o'clock. At that hour every officer in the department, save four of the mounted men and four of the footmen, who were reported too sick to rise, was on hand. Likewise, there were a number of visitors, members of the Legislature and others who had been invited to be present, among them being Senator Isenberg, Senator Crabbe, Representative Chillingworth, Secretary Atkinson of the Republican Central Committee, and others. Attorney General Andrews, Deputy Attorney General C. E. Peters, and Assistant Attorney General Philip Weaver were also on hand promptly on time, and as the hands of the clock showed the half hour these officials, escorted by Sheriff Brown and Under Sheriff Chillingworth, passed out into the jail yard where the policeman, in shining uniforms, the mounted men at one side, but without their horses, stood drawn up in line to greet their superiors.

Sheriff Brown and the Under Sheriff, taking positions with the Attorney General's staff in front of the center of the line and facing the members of the force, in a few words introduced first Mr. Andrews to the department, then Mr. Peters and Mr. Weaver.

The Attorney General, after the introduction, stepped forward and said a few words to the men, but those few were timely. "So long as I am in control of the office of Attorney General," he said, "the members of the police force can rely on it that they will be backed in doing their duty by the whole force of the office. No man shall be held up to ridicule, and no injustice shall be done to any man upon the police force if it is in my power to prevent it. And I think it is timely to take this occasion to commend the police department for the way in which it has recently been rounding up the rough characters, gamblers and burglars of the city. That work has been well done. I commend the department, moreover upon the general appearance of efficiency shown upon this occasion."

The mounted men fell out, and the foot officers were put through a short military drill. Then while the Attorney General's staff and the visitors were inspecting the jail and the patrol wagon and the entire inside mechanism of the department, Captain Parker's drill squad put on their riot uniforms and, assembling once more in the jail yard, were put through the riot drill and the German bayonet drill, doing the latter without orders and earning round after round of applause from the spectators. This was, in effect, the show part of the inspection, and was most creditable to the men who participated and to their drill master.

The bayonet drill squad comprised the following officers:
Captain Kanea, Captain Pohaku, Lieutenant Naipo, Lieutenant Gardner, E. W. Kawalaea, R. Parker, Jr., D. Kellaa, J. Thomas, S. W. Kepano, D.

Haumea, C. A. Wills, J. Kupihe, L. Pallenapa, D. Kaena, M. L. Needham, O. K. Akau, M. Nawaa, H. Kawauhau, G. Hubbell, J. Kaaua, J. Kullike, A. Mossman, J. D. K. Puh, K. Kamann, D. Panekapu, J. Kamealoha, J. K. Keamo, W. Martin, J. K. Kealakui, A. Bishaw.

HOW JUDGE LITTLE PILES UP COSTS

HILLO, Hawaii, Feb. 12.—"This is my calendar, and I will call it as I see fit." In these words Circuit Judge Little proclaimed to the lawyers in his court that he was the real thing when it came to being boss, and that the expense to the Territory in the matter of witness fees, and the wear and tear upon attorneys and their clients in being called into court at all kinds of inconvenient hours cut no figure with him. Judge Little, in fact, has been leading attorneys and witnesses and court officers something of a life during the last term. He has held court from 9 a. m. to 12 noon every day, from 1:30 to 5:30 p. m., and again in the evening from seven o'clock until midnight. And the State's attorneys have been allowed no say whatever in the matter of calling cases for trial. If the Judge wanted to try a case, it has been called—and if the State's witnesses were not on hand the case has been nolle prossed, of necessity. A case cannot be tried, at least with any hope of conviction, if the witnesses for the prosecution are not present.

The result of all this has been that witnesses, living in remote parts of the circuit, have been sent for and held at Hillo. They had to be held, because the State has never been sure at what moment they would be needed. And that has caused a vast piling up on incidental expenses, the bill for which will come on the Territory, even though the officers have cut the fees down as much as they dared.

There was one case, the strongest case of illicit liquor selling the State had, the prosecuting witness in which had been allowed to go home sick, one night. On that particular night the Judge arbitrarily called that particular case, whether or no, and of course the prosecution failed. And then Judge Little said that it was his calendar, and he would call it as he saw fit.

GOTTI SENT THE POPE'S BLESSING

A short time since there was received at the Catholic Mission in this city an official package from the Vatican. It was at first believed to contain the commission of appointment to the new Bishop of Hawaii. The letter enclosed in the envelope, however, was from the Prefect of the Propaganda, Cardinal Gotti, and was a mail reply to the cablegram sent by the late Bishop asking for the Pope's blessing before he passed to the Great Beyond.

Cardinal Gotti stated in the letter that the cablegram had been presented to His Holiness Pope Leo XIII who gave the blessing and instructed the writer to send his blessing to the Bishop of Honolulu, the clergy and all Catholics in the Islands. Cardinal Gotti also sent his own wishes for the Bishop's health and his congratulations on the opening of the Pacific cable.

The letter was written in Rome several days after the death of the Bishop had occurred.
